PEOPLE OF THE DAY.

Senor Sagasta, the new premier of Spain and the leader of the Liberal party, is by no means a new figure in Spanish politics, for he has been connected with the government in various capacities for many years.

SENOR SAGASTA.

He has been premier on previous occasions and has been in half a dozen cabinets, though in order to do so he swung clear around the political circle. He began his public career as a civil engineer, but at 45 he had climbed so high that he was appointed premier. He held this post first in 1871, under King Amadeo, and he managed to cling to his portfolio during the stirring times which followed when General Serrano was chief of the provisional government which overthrew the republican regime. He was also at the head of the cabinet when General Martinez Campos proclaimed Don Alfonso king of Spain. He supported Don Alfonso then as he now supports the monarchy. In fact, Senor Sagasta seems to have cultivated a reverend patriotism which has continued him in the service of his country under all circumstances and kept his name on the royal pay roll. Premier Sagasta is now nearly 70 years old, but is apparently as willing to hold the reins of government as ever.

DR. R. N. POTTER.

Dr. R. N. Potter, whom Editor John Brisson Walker has chosen as president for his Cosmopolitan Educational University extension, is a distinguished divine. His father was Bishop Almon Potter, Bishop Potter of New York is his brother, and he himself was once elected bishop of the diocese.

A Russian Translation of Dickens. The quickly expanded metaphors and idiomatic slangy expressions in the recently completed parts of the book "Dickens and Poe" have sometimes naturally proved too hard nuts for the honest foreigner to crack. A ludicrous instance of such a fiasco occurred in chapter 2, where Mr. Chick's matrimonial bickerings with his better half form the basis of the humorous and satirical narrative.

Mr. Chick's "better half" would suddenly make a start, then turn the matter over to the next chapter, Mrs. Chick and carry all before him. The Russian rendering of this sentence, which is a translation of the original, would start up from his seat, catch hold of the centre and make a clatter close to the ears of his astonished spouse and fling about everything that came ready to hand. "Well, indeed, might the elegant and ladylike Louisa show astonishment at such emphatic contributions to the debate."—Notes and Queries.

Turkish Army Relations.

Correspondents who accompanied the Turkish army during the war with Greece refer often to the dietary habits of the Turks. Pilav, or pilaf, the national dish, receives great praise. It is what we should call a chowder, composed of lamb, rice, butter, almonds, raisins, allspice, powdered mace, cardamom, cloves, nutmeg, onion, ginger, salt, whole black pepper and dill. The better and onions are placed in the bottom of an earthen pot, then a layer of rice, over which are distributed the onions, raisins and almonds, sprinkled with saffron in water, then a layer of meat, and so on alternately until the vessel is filled. Butter is then poured over the whole, and the cover of the pot is closed with paste so that no steam may escape. It is placed in an oven and cooked for three hours.

Books at a Lightning Speed.

A large bookbinder may have a capacity of 10,000 books a day. The resources of some of these binderies are wonderful. There is an instance on record where a publishing house took an order on Monday for a cloth covered 12mo. volume of 350 pages, and actually shipped 2,000 copies of the book on the following Wednesday. The work was set by machinery for the entire 350 pages before work stopped Monday night. Electrotypes plates were made so rapidly that on Tuesday morning several all printing presses were set in motion. In the meantime covers were made in the bindery, and by Wednesday morning the binders had the book in hand. Two thousand volumes were completed that day, and the edition of 10,000 was entirely out of the way before Saturday night. In modern bookbinding machinery, as in the production of printing presses, America leads the world, and no other nation can equal it in the speed and general effectiveness with which all branches of the industry are carried out.—Literary News.

Siberia's Snow Flower.

Travelers in Siberia tell of the wonderful flower that grows there and which blooms only in January, when the winter is at its height. The blossom has something of the characteristic of a morning glory, lasting only a single day. The flowers, when it opens, are star-shaped. Its petals are of the same length as the leaves and about half an inch in width. On the last day of the extremities of the anthers, which are five in number, show minute, glistering specks, whose color is like the diamonds, about the size of a pin's head. These are the seed of the flower. A Russian poleman named Antokhsok took a number of the seeds to St. Petersburg. They were placed in a jar of snow and frozen water. On the coldest day of the winter, the flowers miraculously flowered through the ice covering and displayed its beauties to the wondering spectators. The plant has been very appreciated and is now a snow flower.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

SHORT NEWS STORIES.

Indians Scared by an Elevator.—"King of Beggars" Makes $200 a Month. A Singular Conflagration.

An Indian yell, which made the blood of the people at the stationhouse run cold, reverberated through the halls and offices on a recent afternoon. It sounded like the dying moan of 1,000 souls going down into perdition. It was wild, anomalous and weird and terrifying in the extreme. Chiefs Muck Nose and Little Talk were doing the stationhouse and stepped into the elevator at the solicitation of their guide. The carriage started up and then the Indians yelled, and dropped down on their knees and lifted up their voices in a wild, discordant supplication to the Great Spirit, while the other seized the iron grating of the cage and yelled in savage style. The muscles of his face stood out in bold relief, so great was the exertion of yelding. The squaws fell upon the floor of the elevator and seemed in a faint. When the elevator stopped, the Indians scrambled out, but visited the stationhouse no longer. They hurried down a stairway leading to the main entrance and disappeared as if by magic toward their camp.—Topola State Journal.

"King of Beggars" Makes $200 a Month.

John Wadleigh, better known as the "King of Beggars," has returned to this city after an absence of over a year. He arrived a few days ago with wife and family and set out pictures new and the charitable inclined, but as his true character is well known he may not reap the amount he did on his last visit. Wadleigh and his wife have been in the habit of traveling from place to place and by their plausible tale of woe and suffering have succeeded in gaining a little without much exertion. The title of "king" was given to him by his class owing to his great ability as a beggar. It is said by those who know that his earnings on his last visit amounted to nearly $200 a month. The "king" is in the habit of occupying nicely furnished flats and enjoying the comforts of home life. At his leisure he follows the races, where success and is also addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors. His wife, Louie, is a little woman, with a sweet face, and has an air of worldly ignorance about her which leads people to listen to her story and often move about in the big city. It is a very odd denotation of furniture, bedding, provisions, etc., from as many people as she can, they dispose of the same at the highest price she can receive for each. The last time these unworthy aids seekers were here they played on the sympathies of the various charitable organizations with great success until they were shown to be impostors.—San Francisco Call.

A Singular Conflagration.

"Some time ago," said an insurance agent, "a man asked me to accompany him home, as he had some things there to be insured. When we arrived at his house, he showed me 100 bags of cigars which he wanted insured. There were 100 cigars in each box, making 10,000 in all, and valued at 10 cents each. I insured the lot for $100. He was five days ago the man came to me and asked for the insurance money. 'You've had no fire at your home,' I replied. 'No, but I've smoked them,' he says, he, according to the paper, I am entitled to the money, as it is definitely that if goods are lost by fire the money is to be paid on application. As far as technicalities were concerned he was all right, but I knothed him cold about a minute later by saying in a very snappy manner: 'All right, sir. You'll get the money, but, according to your own confession, I will proceed at once to make a claim against you for the loss of the cigars.' 'Well, I'll be hanged' was all he said, and the room shook violently after he banged the door."—Philadelphia Record.

The Squaw and the Passenger.

A sleeping car passenger on a train running into Portland, Ore., awoke this morning and took a seat beside a squaw. He was puffing vigorously at a cigar, and the Indian woman got more of the smoke than she liked. She protested in pantomime to the conductor, who, being somewhat of a wag, indicated that she should make use of an immense umbrella she had by her side to do away with the smoke. She naturally presumed that the conductor's authority was all sufficient and forthwith acted on his suggestion with native vigor. The man's hat was knocked down over his eyes and all but ruined, and the cigar was sent spinning galley west. When he got out of his hat, he turned with not inexpressible ferocity upon his assailant, but the squaw merely looked at him with aboriginal immobility of countenance and wouldn't understand either English or sign language, and while the other passengers were convulsed with merriment he had to retreat to another car.—New York Sun.

Even after tea was introduced into Europe and had come into general use (sauce was scarce, says The Jeweler's Circular). At the same time coffee was introduced; but, apart from Constantinople, the first coffee cups in Europe date back only as far as 1646 in Venice, 1659 in Paris, 1663 in London and 1694 in Leipzig. From the first, however, the conventional Oriental coffee cup without stem or handle was little used and in Germany not at all. The Chinese teacup was used for tea, coffee and chocolate. Specimens of porcelain were undoubtedly introduced into Europe in the middle ages, yet not till the sixteenth century were cups imported from China in any great quantities, and even then it was as articles of virtu. Most of these found their way back to China again, as good collecting porcelain is a last but not least, and high prices are paid for good specimens. The collection of Chinese porcelain, if only the genuine goods are desired, requires immense study and knowledge, as the Chinese are skillful imitators and put numerous falsifications on the market.

HOW TO FIND IT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stands in it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. It is required desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fully every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and swelling in passing it, or had effect following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant condition known as "gravel" to get up many times during the night, to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful power of the most distressing ailment. If you need a medicine you should have the best. BOYS

What sort of a start are you going to make in life? Are you going to make money and be successful business men? Or are you going to wear yourselves out in the cheerless drudgery of hard labor? Half of this depends on your parents, the other half on you.

YOUNG MAN

Wealth and honors await you if you prepare yourself to take them. Men succeed WHO ARE READY. If you want to be paid a good salary you must make yourself worthy of it. There are thousands of $50 a week places begging for good men, and millions of $1 a week men begging for poor places. If you are worth $50 a week you will get it—sure. We prepare students to fill the most responsible positions in counting rooms and offices in from one-half to two-thirds the time required elsewhere. The best equipment a young man can have who expects to make his way in the world is a course in

NATIONAL BUSINESS COLLEGE

OF THE NEW YORK BUSINESS INSTITUTE, 81 E. 125th Street, New York, N. Y.

Don't throw away time and money by going to temporary schools when it will cost you less to attend this one. We also have a number of students in attendance who have left lucrative trades in the street. So be careful of the cost of this course. It is equal to a year in any other school. Besides, such schools rarely or never obtain positions for their graduates. We do.

$5 REWARD for first information of a vacancy for a Bookkeeper, Clerk or Telegraph Operator, which we will pay upon the successful completion of the course. For all graduates of Business and Shorthand courses. Refer to this ad. in the advertisement of the National Business Institute. Students enter any time. No vacation. Entrance free. If it is a month's employment and willing to study send for the catalogue. A successful bookkeeper is much more helpful. Address as above for the catalogue.

CHEAP GREENHOUSES.

For Parents: Cheap of the More Hardy Vegetables During Early Winter.

There is considerable demand for cheap fruit. House suitable for growing such vegetables as lettuce, spinach and radishes during the early part of winter and vegetable plants from the latter part of February on until spring.

With a view to assisting readers who do not wish to invest the money needed for a more elaborate house or one detached from a building is here reproduced an illustration from Farm and Fireside of a forcing house built in Maryland. It is described as a lean-to (as at least partially built against the south side of the dwelling house, and in such a way that the whole structure can be taken down in spring and each side safely packed away until the approach of cold weather in the fall.

It will be seen that almost the only expense of the house is in the sashes, and as the wooden portions of the sashes are homemade the outlay is in reality only in the glass. The little frame which supports the roof is made of wood by any one with ordinary mechanical skill, and where wood is plenty and cheap with a cent's outlay. The ex-

"LEARN" TO THE FOREIGN HOUSE.

For the few hours that it is needed, and for heating this house the other quoted says:

Do not know how this greenhouse does or whether it is heated at all. I suppose a fire could easily be through the center of the house, but in a chimney at the highest side, having a furnace for wood or coal, never may be cheapest or most economical at the other. For space for Maryland, and even as far north as New Jersey, artificial heat is dispensed with, but it will be safe and more convenient to have this house a number of crops are in succession every winter, such as lettuce, radishes, and so on. Men are grown a good lot of vegetables, after which the house is taken down and the ground cropped, and the plants are ready for the market. The house and tillage which the land thus saves seem to keep it free from aphid plant diseases, so that the winter, although grown right along on same soil, do not suffer from these Setting a Bet. The quiet of the room in which the answers to queries editor sat was disturbed by the entrance of two half grown boys.

One of them pulled off his hat and addressed him:

"Me and this feller here made a bet," he said, "and we've agreed to leave it to you. He bets that if all the parakeys that was set last Christmas was placed in a line they would march around the world, and I bet they wouldn't. Who's lost?"

"You have, my son," answered the man in the chair. "They might be placed a mile apart, and they would still be in a line, you know."

As they turned and went out of the room the boy who had acted as spokesman was seen to hand a small coin over to the other with great reluctance, and distinctly heard to say:

"Well, I can lick you, anyhow."

"Bet you a nickel on that, too," replied the other boy.—Chicago Tribune.

A Companion For All Ages.

A gentleman who used to read THE YOUTH'S COMPANION when a boy, and reads it with the same interest now that he is a middle-aged man, was asked the other day if he had not outgrown THE COMPANION. "I don't believe," said he, "that I can ever outgrow it. I find in it not only the cheery, hopeful spirit of youth, but the wisdom and experience of age. I find in it just as much as when I was a boy, though perhaps in a different way, but I know that it is the same Youth's Companion we which I grew up, for my boys and girls like it as well as ever I did. It is a good paper to grow up with."

THE YOUTH'S COMPANION will contain the best thought of the best thinkers of America and Europe during 1899. It will print serial and short stories of absorbing interest, and true tales of adventure. The various departments of the paper will be in the current record of the best work that is being done in the world. Present readers of THE COMPANION who renew their subscriptions, all new subscribers, will receive free a beautiful illustrated calendar, printed in twelve colors, and embossed in gold. It is the richest and most costly calendar or sent to COMPANION subscribers. New subscribers will receive THE COMPANION every week from the time the subscription is received until January, 1899, and then for a full year to January, 1899.

Didn't Understand English.

A Chinaman was once "handed up" before a magistrate in Sydney, New South Wales, and charged with some offense. In reply to his worship's usual query as to whether he pleaded guilty or not, he said only one answer:

"Me no sabee! Me no talker English!"

The magistrate, however, who was quite accustomed to the proceeding on the part of many Celestials who came before him, turned to him and said:

"That answer 'do for me. You know English well enough, I'll be bound."

"Me no sabee—me no sabee" were the words he used to draw from the Chinese interpreter, and no Chinese interpreter being in court, the magistrate, taking the matter into his own hands, ordered the case to be proceeded with as if the accused had pleaded not guilty.

The Greatest Discovery Yet.

W. M. Repine, editor Tishkivi, Ill., "Chills" says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds. Experienced with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain cure for such troubles as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures as besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at C. W. Morrison's Drug Store.

There is an eminent physician in London who takes the position that the health of the people would be on an average, better and the duration of life longer if there were not a practicing physician in the world. In other words, he favors the idea often tersely expressed in the words: "Physicians kill more people than they cure."

Preaches and Preaches.

In Yale's recent football practice Outlin has played center on the college side. He is a big theological student of whom considerable has been heard as a promising player. He was born in Iowa, but has never had any experience save a little in association football. He is studying in the theological school, and preaches in a suburban church every Sunday morning. He is a powerful fellow and very eager to become a varsity player.

Outlin shows a determination to learn that commends him to the coaches. He is the only big man who has yet appeared, and his coaches are greatly in need of big men for the center of the line.

Wordsworth's Search.

So long as there are writers of books there will be many words which have to do with the painstaking labor of Wordsworth, as indicated in the journal of Dorothy Wordsworth: "William has been thinking of an adjective for the cuckoo."

Lost Arts of Egypt.

Analysis of weapons and tools, dating from very ancient times in Egypt, have convinced M. Berthelot, French chemist, that the old Egyptians used pure copper in the manufacture of such objects. They displayed much ingenuity in manipulating the metal, and the old was made by folding thin strips of copper over one another and then forging them into a solid blade, while hollow blades were formed from copper leaf by a method very similar to that which is employed at the present day in making belted tubing for bicycles.

How To Cure Bilious Colic.

I suffered for weeks with colic and pains in my stomach caused by biliousness and had to take medicine all the while until I used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which cured me. I have since recommended it to all good many people. Mrs. F. B. Burt, of Parkersburg, Conn. Persons who are subject to bilious colic can ward off the attack by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms appear. Sold by Morrison the Druggist.
